A word in edgewise;
wise and otherwise

LET PEOPLE SAY
It appears from press dispatches that Senator Borah has an old-fashioned idea that if the constitution is to be ripped into shreds, as demanded by the New Dealers, the work on the document should be done by the people themselves, instead of in Washington.

In other words if the Supreme Court is to be abolished and legislative functions transferred from that department to the executive branch, he has a notion that before such things are done it might be well to let the people themselves have a voice in the matter
and approve or disapprove.

DICTATORSHIP HINTED
Although the doughty senator from Idaho did not say so in that many words, he did intimate very strongly that the criticism on the court's NRA decision and the simultaneous attacks on the constitution were in reality a thinlyveiled effort to set things in motion for the establishment of a dictatorship.

While making it known that he was cognizant of the magnitude of the task that confronted the President in these days of stress and uncertainty he emphasized
the fact that existing constitutional authority is broad enough for the job.

ISSUES DARE
"If the people of this country"
he said, "want the executive department to have unlimited power to make laws for every conceivable activity of the citizen, violation of which would send a man to jail, they, at least, should have an opportunity to pass upon the question."

"No such power should be established by the courts or by the surrender of duty by the Congress. Let us have an open proposal by way of a constitutional amendment submitted by those who want such power."

The language can be interpreted in no other way than a direct challenge to the President, in view of his remarkable statement at a press conference following the court's decision, to pursue such a course as his language indicated.

SOUNDS SILLY
Just to illustrate how silly such a proposal would be, Borah read an amendment he had drafted to
"get a full view of its hideous legal and moral aspects." It said:
"The legislative power is hereby vested in the Congress of the United States and in the different executive departments which may be created from time to

Veterans Ask Signals For Local Street

The Allied War Veterans Council last night went on record in a letter to the city manager, asking that an electric traffic signal be placed at Tenth street and Macdonald avenue.

The Council declared that at the present time there is no traffic signal at the intersection,
which is one of the busiest corners in the city.

Mail Clerk Given
Sentence By U. S.
SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—UP—
On recommendation of the Secretary, Orva A. Berry, 22, former mail clerk at Sausalito, Cal., for the forest service, was sent to federal prison today for forging government checks. Captain Thomas B. Foster, Secret Service head here, made the recommendation because of circumstances surrounding the forgery.

THE WEATHER
BAY REGION—Fair today with lower temperature in the afternoon.
Wednesday fairer and cooler with fog; gentle variable winds becoming westerly.
NORTHERN CALIFORNIA—Fair

KIDNAP CAR REPORTED IN LOS ANGELES

MYSTERY OF MISSING MAN UNDER PROBE

LOS ANGELES, June 3.—
UP—A brown Hudson sedan
similar to one in which suspects in the George Weyerhaeuser kidnap case reportedly fled from Oregon, was reported seen here tonight by a street car conductor.

He told police four men and a woman, the latter with a machine gun on her lap, were in the car, which bore Kansas license plates.

ON LOOKOUT
Federal agents requested State highway police to "bottle up" the Los Angeles area in an effort to trace reports from Bakersfield police that a tan sedan similar to one described in a police broadcast had been seen heading southward.

Reports variously placed two and three persons in the sedan.
Occupants reportedly had machine guns and rifles and the car had no license plates.

HUNT IS ON
TACOMA, Wash., June 3.—
UP—The great manhunt for the kidnapers of George Weyerhaeuser, 9, still centered tonight within 100 miles of Issaquah, the Cascades foothills town near which he was released at 4 A. M. Sat-

Former Pastor Is Given Parole From San Quentin

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, June 3.—
UP—Twelve years behind San Quentin's gates ended today for Herbert Wilson, former clergyman who turned into a reckless mail robber.

Wilson was ordered deported to Canada immediately as one of his conditions of parole. A former Canada and Oregon minister, Wilson was suspected in mail robberies totaling $1,000,000, all committed in the early 20's.

Postal inspectors agreed to his freedom because of his aid in trapping former robber companions.

Routine Matters
Before Council
A number of minor matters were taken up by the council at its meeting last evening and disposed of.

Scott R. Welch was given permission to construct a service station
at the southwest corner of Eighth and Nevin avenue.

Action on a petition for a street light at Eighteenth and Bissell was postponed for one week.

A letter was read from J. H.
Plate, representing the owners of a house on South Twenty-ninth street, about which complaint has been made. The writer stated the building would be removed by the 10th of this month.

Fire Chief W. P. Cooper's report showed a loss on buildings in the city during the past month of $60.
O. W. Wriglesworth was granted a soft drink permit for 724 Macdonald avenue.

Townsend Pension
Club Has Meeting
A short meeting of the Townsend Old Age Pension club was held last night at W. O. W. hall with George Black presiding over the session. Important business matters were discussed.

ROOSEVELT, CABINET TO MEET ON NRA

6 COLLAPSE IN EASTBAY RECORD HEAT

Richmond and eastbay residents can expect another record hot day today, according to a prediction made by the government weather station in San Francisco last night.

Yesterday's warm spell broke records of many years' standing in this area and caused six persons to be treated at hospitals in the bay region for heat prostrations.

RECORDS BROKEN
In San Francisco the hottest June 3 since 1893 was recorded when the temperature reached 89 at 11:30 o'clock. However, the afternoon became cooler.

No accurate temperature mark was registered in Richmond but it is believed that the mercury hovered well around the 90's during the morning and afternoon.

SEEK RELIEF
Beaches and parks throughout the bay area and in San Francisco were crowded throughout the day by residents.

The weather bureau believes that late this afternoon some relief from the heat will be experienced. Inland high pressure areas, which are forcing the hot continental air into the coast area
will deflate and give the ocean
breezes an opportunity to cool off the coast. Fog is expected to hit the bay regions late today.

Although Richmond "roasted" in the sun, residents were somewhat relieved however, when they learned that Bakersfield had a temperature of 101, Fresno 100
and Sacramento 98.

Midget Auto Races Seen For Cerrito

An ordinance regulating midget automobile, motorcycle and bicycle racing and providing for the issuance of permits, passed its first reading by the council of El Cerrito at its meeting Monday night.

Council members will meet sometime this week to discuss the terms of the permit to be issued after the ordinance is finally passed.

The permit will provide for the period of time of operation, the fee
to be paid, the number of police officers to be employed and the salary to be paid them, the days of the week for conducting races
and the muffling of the midget autos.

TEMPORARY PERMIT
After much discussion an amendment made by Councilman Peter

Gladstone Lodge To Install Tonight

Gladstone Lodge Sons of St.
George will install officers tonight, and Chas. C. Marshall of Alameda will be the installing officer, assisted by H. Hornett, deputy grand messenger. Thomas Glaason will be the new president.
Refreshments will be served afterwards by a committee headed by Herbert Casewell.

The forty-first semi-annual report will be read by the auditing committee, headed by Arthur Baker, W. Fewins and Archie Mc-Vickers.

Fish Plant Is Vetoed By Council

There will be no fish reduction plant in the center of the city.

That question was determined in short order by the council at its meeting last evening.

The application of E. A. Seltz, engineer for the Enterprise Foundry property to locate a plant on Cutting boulevard and the Santa Fe channel, was denied.

There was no debate on the question. Councilman Sam Ripley made the motion that the application be denied. It was seconded by Councilman Frank E. Tiller.

Then came the vote. There were eight councilmen present and they all voted aye.

Before the vote was taken protests against the proposed plant
from the Westside Improvement Club, 70 signers on a petition from the Point, and a letter of protest from the Ellis Landings
and Dock Company were read.

Local Printer Badly Injured In Auto Crash

John L. Pierce, 32, of 824 Barrett avenue, a linotype operator at a local newspaper, is in a precarious condition at a Lodi hospital as the result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident near Lodi on Sunday afternoon.

At 11:15 last night, Pierce was reported still unconscious, but had shown a very slight improvement.
He is suffering from a fractured skull, several broken ribs and a fractured collarbone. Dr. L. A.
Hodges of Richmond went to Lodi
to examine him.

According to reports, Pierce was driving to Sacramento to bring home his two children, who were spending the week with his mother.
Near Lodi he picked up two hitch hikers.

A few miles outside of Lodi, his car went out of control, struck a culvert and turned over three times.
The two hitch hikers were injured and were taken with Pierce to the hospital.

Upon receipt of word of the accident Mrs. Hester Pierce left with friends for Lodi to be at the bedside of her husband.

eulogistic resolutions of condolence
were adopted by the Contra Costa administration in the estate of Sarah Ella Baldwin, today were asked by her son, Joseph D. Baldwin, Jr., in a petition filed in superior court through Attorney T.

N. Calfee of Richmond.

Mrs. Baldwin had an estate consisting of property in Richmond worth $1,000, according to the petition.

DAMAGE IS ESTIMATED IN MILLIONS

By UNITED PRESS
Floods, which have taken a toll of 216 persons dead or missing in four inland States since last Thursday, created new havoc Monday night.

Property damage was estimated
in excess of $2,000,000.

Walls of water smashed down
the Smoky Hill and Republican rivers in Central Kansas and located the rich bottoms at the head of the Kaw river at Junction City.

HIGH WATER
High waters in the North Platte
and South Platte rivers in Western Nebraska flooded portions of the city of North Platte.

Missouri rivers were bank full and towns in the Jefferson City neighborhood had water in their streets. The municipal airport at Kansas City was threatened.
Workmen waded rip-raps into the river to stop erosion.

TOWNS FLOODED
In Eastern Kansas hundreds of residents from a flood in the basin
of the Marais des Cygnes river were trapped in Ottawa, which was four feet under water.

were believed drowned along the Republican river from the Nebraska border down to Mandan.

Women Anticipate Interesting Time

One of the outstanding events of the year for women is here. It begins today and is an opportunity for a cooking school. This year's cooking is done in a kitchen much different from that of grandmother's day. There are hours and hours less time needed in cooking
there's less work and more fun.
Today's kitchen is a real "Happy Kitchen" or ought to be. If your three meals a day seem just a succession of toast and eggs and potatoes and meat and beef and pie, this cooking school is made to order for you. And if you've already found the secret to pleasure and fascination in making dainty new dishes and decorating an old stand by in colorful new fashions, you'll love the Happy Kitchen programs just as much.

Mrs. Hester Heath, noted Happy
Kitchen expert, who will conduct the programs will show you how your kitchen, too, can be a great deal happier.

Electrolier Lighting Bid Is Awarded

The contract for the lighting of the electrolier system on Macdonald avenue from First street to Twenty-third street was awarded to the Pacific Gas & Electric company by the council at its meeting last evening.

The contract covers a period of five years as provided by law. This was the only bid as there is no other company furnishing electricity in this city, and the rate is that established by the railroad commission.

Councilman Otto Ladewig, said
that some of the property owners thought the city should pay a great er proportion of the cost than 15 per cent.

City Manager J. A. McVittie, explained that the percentage paid by the city was the former cost of ordinary street lighting and when the system was put into operation it was done so on the petition of the business men and the property owners along the street.

The electroliers from First to Sixth streets will carry 1,000 candle-power lamps, from Sixth to third Southern Pacific tracks 1,500 candle-power and from that point to Twenty-third street, 1,000 candle-power.

The bid submitted was as follows:
1,000 candle power lamps, midnight schedule $3.64 per month; all night schedule $4.53.

1,500 candle power lamps, midnight schedule $4.41; all night schedule $5.71.

Later resolutions were adopted
providing for an assessment to provide for the lighting cost of the Nevin avenue system, and also the Twenty-third street system.

tan. Kan., which was mostly under water.

50 BODIES FOUND
Throughout this region as well as in Southern Nebraska, where 50 bodies were counted and another 81 persons were missing, there was an acute typhoid danger from polluted water.

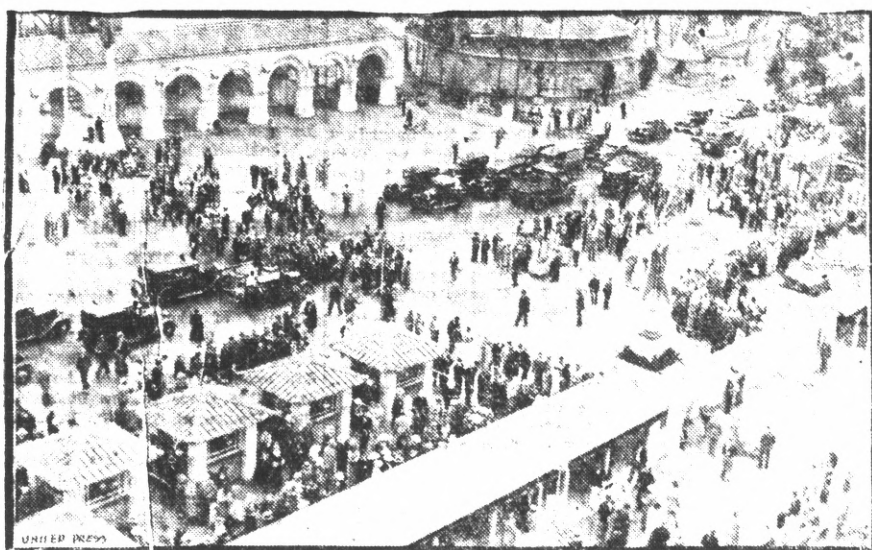

Most hopeful sign in the flood areas was the clearing of skies today after five days of rainfall. Cloudbursts which struck first in the Pike's Peak region of the Colorado Rockies sent a hundred streams into flood stage.

HEAVY RAINS FALL
First floods occurred around Colorado Springs, Colo., where 19 persons lost their lives. Seven others were drowned as a result of the same storms in Wyoming.

Cloudbursts then overwhelmed tributaries of the Republican river through the northwestern corner of Kansas and Southern Nebraska. Five hundred army engineers and laborers were constructing emergency bridges throughout that area today to quicken rehabilitation work. More than 1,000 families were homeless.

Torrential rains in Northern Kansas augmented the flood in the Republican river before it struck Junction City and Manhattan. Army officials feared that certain floods will occur at Topeka tonight.

MORE MEN IN LUMBER STRIKE BACK AT WORK

PORTLAND, Ore., June 3.—UP—Return of more than 5,000 men to their jobs in Pacific Northwest camps, mills and wood-working factories today reduced the number still on strike to about 2,000, but failed to shake the determination of most operators in Portland, Grays Harbor and Puget Sound areas not to deal with the union.

More than 5,000 men went back to work in the Long-Bell and Weyerhaeuser mills at Longview and in logging camps of the firms. The men received a pay boost of five cents an hour. The Sawmill & Timber Workers' Union, author of the strike, was not recognized for collective bargaining.

Fifteen hundred lumber workers returned as two Portland factories reopened. Workers reopened the Plywood Corporation plant.

Only one mill, the Southeast Portland Lumber Company, attempted to reopen in Portland. About 150 men went to the mill but the presence of 100 pickets barred operators not to start up.

Two mills resumed operations at Vancouver, Wash., and one veneer plant started at Astoria.

The DAILY WASHINGTON

MERRY GO ROUND

WASHINGTON, June 3.—One of the most consistent, though private, champions of the New Deal in the past has been the case of the Supreme Court, Louis B. Brandeis.

It was pretty well known months in advance, however, that he would side with the conservative justices of the Supreme Court in condemning the NRA.

In letting this be known, the Justice violated no proprieties of the court. He has a great love of youth, is constantly surrounded by young men and women, talks freely with them regarding their duties, their struggles and the problems of the nation.

Long ago they knew that the famous liberal Justice felt that the NRA and some much too far in attempting to force codes on every form of industry.

At one time his youthful friends thought that his industries, such as coal, steel, lumber, textiles, should have codes imposed upon them. But in the end the Justice always came back to his original thesis.

This thesis was once expressed to Brandeis by General Johnson.

The General, then just starting to call the Blue Eagle to the American people, came to see Brandeis. The Justice did not know he was coming. But when Johnson turned on at Brandeis' apartment, brought by a mutual friend, the Justice not only received him courteously but smiled frankly to Johnson's questions regarding the NRA.

It was Brandeis' advice, expressed very gently, that Johnson was going too far.

"All industry codes," Brandeis told Johnson in brief, "is the abolition of child labor, a minimum wage and a limitation on working hours. Given these three basic remedies, the other ills of industry will take care of themselves."

Johnson might have saved industry and himself nearly two years of experimentation had he taken the advice.

How Dickens Wrote "Great Expectations"

One of the finest works written by Charles Dickens was "Great Expectations," which has been produced as a film and will present at the Richmond theater today.

Dickens wrote "Great Expectations" the year after he moved into his beloved home at Gad's Hill.

Dickens had a tunnel constructed under the highway leading to his house, connecting his home with a chalet on the opposite side. It was in the chalet that he did most of his writing. His stalwart figure was a familiar sight as he tramped through the Kentish lanes he loved so well with his dog, Quirk, the mastiff, at his heels.

In the romantic lanes of Kent, called "The Garden of England," Dickens thought out the story of "Great Expectations," which was first published in the Household Magazine and ran serially during 1860-61.

HOUSE-PARTY MURDER

Perfect things, wealthy old invalid, is murdered in her bed late one night in her isolated country house. In the house, aside from the servants, are her niece and nephew, Joan and Ricky Elanes, three men—Wesley Mains, Stephen Carr and William Grove—whom she had invited for the week-end.

Timothy Kelly, whom Joan had invited, and Ruth Andrews, trained nurse. As a blizzard has cut them off from the outside world, they are forced to take things into their own hands. A missing $100,000 necklace seems to have been the motive for the crime. The next night Ricky is murdered, and Rodney, Stephen and William are found dragged. At the breakfast table, when Timothy and William get into a spat, Timothy admits that he is suspected of having been involved in three recent jewel robberies.

CHAPTER XXII
TIMOTHY'S startling announcement seemed to take the wind out of William's sails. Joan was torn between admiration for Tim's courage, and fear for the consequences of his brazen challenge.

Rodney, who up to now had been nursing his throbbing head, was the first to speak. "And that," he growled, "is an extraordinary honesty as there I, among the William murderers, 'Who is the best one to be in the confessional?'"

"If there was no answer, save a word from Rodney, who had dropped his head into his hands, Joan pushed back her chair and led the way from the dining room.

On the way out, William turned to Ruth Andrews. "What would you advise for an aching head and a tongue like cotton?"

"Castor oil and fresh air," Timothy decided. "We can go out on the veranda. Really will come with us, of course."

Timothy nodded, but as they moved towards the hall closet for their coats, he said quietly to Joan: "Make an excuse and go upstairs. Have a look around the rooms."

There was no time to ask what she was to look for, but she nodded, gave a smiling excuse to the others about giving orders to the servants, and went into the library.

AS SOON as the front door had banged shut, she started quickly for the upper floor. Having already instructed Meyers to tell the maid to let the upstairs cleaning go for this morning, she found the upper corridor deserted. Sure that Timothy did not expect her to search Ricky's room, she hurried past his open doorway to the end of the corridor, where it turned at right angles into the wing where the guests were quartered.

Opening the first door at right angles, she stepped into Rodney's room. Everything was in great confusion. Clothes were strewn over chairs, cigarette butts had been dropped to the floor, and a half-finished bottle of whiskey stood on the table, which was marked with rings where a wet glass had been put down carelessly.

Finding nothing of interest in the room—only signs of disorder—she gave a last look around and was about to leave when a dark stain on the floor just inside the doorway caught her attention. She stared at it for several seconds, and finally knelt down. More than anything, it looked like the mark of a heel—the heel of a man's shoe, and there was little doubt in her mind but that it had been made by blood.

For a moment she stayed motionless, staring at the footprint. Then, remembering that there was no time to be lost, she went out and on to the next room.

EVEN if she had not known, she would have guessed that William secured this room. Every thing was very orderly, and there was something sober and precise in the atmosphere of the room. In the few days he had occupied it, it seemed to have acquired his stamp. A few personal odds and ends placed here and there, the arrangement of a table and a chair, and the gleamy, high-ceilinged room had become William's private domain.

She made a methodical search as she dared, with the time passing so rapidly. Then, finding nothing, she had started to go back to the hall when she remembered that William and Stephen's rooms adjoined. The door, which had been partially hidden behind a screen, was unlocked and she went through hurriedly.

Stephen's room was even more orderly than William's, but with the sort of methodical order characteristic of fussy old maids. Letter articles arranged on the bureau with the same number of inches between each piece. In the drawers, everything folded with incredible precision. Nothing on the chairs, and nothing on the table except a small leather volume of poems by Stephen himself.

It was a ticklish room to search for the slightest thing left out of place was bound to be noticed, and Joan did her work thoroughly and when she had finished, although her efforts were quite barren.

Out in the hall again, she was listening but hearing nothing, she decided to finish the job thoroughly—and also satisfy a personal curiosity. If she had hoped, however, to find anything interesting in Ruth Andrews' room, she was disappointed. It was much smaller than the others, and remarkable neither for order nor disorder. In this closet, four starched uniforms and two dresses in the drawers, the usual underwear. On the table, a nurse's chart, a fountain pen, and two novels.

EXACTLY what she was searching for, Joan didn't quite know, but she found herself running her fingers under the mattress and in the creases of the arm chair. She found nothing, not even the pencil or safety pin that one usually finds in upholstered chairs. She left the room regretfully.

There was nothing to report to Timothy except the strange footprint in Rodney's room. Its significance dawned vividly on her if the stain was blood. It must mean that someone had stepped in the puddle beside Ricky's body last night, and had afterwards been in Rodney's room. But if that were true, there should be tracks leading down the hall, and there wasn't so much as a sign of a track on either the carpet or the edge of floor beyond the runner. In front of Ricky's door there were prints, smudged and otherwise, but otherwise nothing.

She turned the corner into the corridor that led past her room and Ricky's and her aunt's, a thin-frown creasing her forehead. Who had made that footprint? Rodney himself, and Stephen and William were all, apparently, in a drugged condition at the time of the murder. Could John, the gardener, have left the print? But why should he have gone into Rodney's room? And Timothy was surely too careful to have stepped too close to Ricky's body.

Joan was so engrossed in her thoughts that she almost passed her brother's room without realizing it. Then, suddenly, she stopped, rooted to the spot. The door, which had been open when she came upstairs, was now half closed and, as she stood listening, she heard a board creak. Some body was in the room!

Hollywood Film Shop

HOLLYWOOD, June 3.—(AP)—Philo Sargis here made a new record for under one 12 feet of motion picture film.

He had made one 12 feet of motion picture film, but he didn't dread the record. He is being made into an "average" type made in demand among film producers.

A coming actor with no credit, Sargis, Oliver enlisted in the Navy at the outbreak of the war. While convalescing from ship, Oliver's boat crashed in a battle with a German destroyer and a portion of his face was shot away by a bursting shell.

He was given small chance to survive at first. Then doctors told him it would be impossible to make his face normal again. But a West Coast surgeon asked permission to experiment in making a new face.

Two operations did the job, but Oliver now has lost his former juvenile characteristics and has taken on the hard appearance that seems to assure his success in "heavy roles."

He has just completed a role with Richard Dix in "The Arizona" for Radio Pictures. Now he has only four more operations to undergo.

After who has given the screen many hits, and starring Karen Morley and Tom Keene, is the extra feature tomorrow.

Have mercy on your stomach Cook with CRISCO—it digests quickly

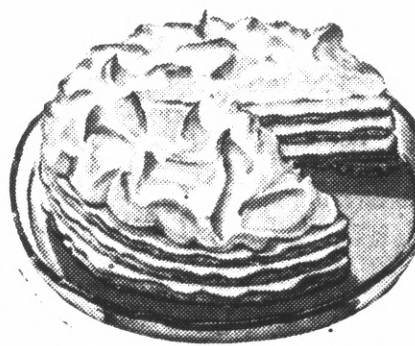

You don't need to take the joy out of eating in order to protect your digestion. You can gladly say "yes" to wholesome Crisco pies and crispy Crisco-fried foods! Yes, they can be good for you—because Crisco is the digestible vegetable shortening that doesn't over-burden your stomach.

Most every day something is fried in your house. Is it grease-soaked and hard to digest—or is it brown and crispy the way Crisco-fried foods are? Crisco can be heated higher—so it seals food quickly in toasty brown—which prevents fat from soaking into the food. That's why Crisco-fried foods digest quickly!

But let your common sense tell you. Look at Crisco—see how it piles up like thick country cream on a spoon! Taste its sweetness. Why, there's nothing like Crisco, because Crisco is made from digestible vegetable oils by its own secret process!

When you buy Crisco, look for the familiar blue-and-white label. Crisco's vacuum-sealed can is a health-protection to you.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

Chief Habit-Forming Drugs Are Morphine, Heroin and Codeine—Some Begin Purposely

THE depression seems to have hit most everything but the demand for morphine and cocaine. The cost of production and distribution has gone up, but the demand remains the same, or greater. Morphine, heroin, codeine, and cocaine are the great habit-forming drugs. It is very unfortunate that the drugs which are so great a boon to suffering mankind should be the cause of so much sorrow, degradation, and mental degeneration.

Unlike alcohol, opium, from which morphine, heroin, and codeine are derived, does not produce organic lesions, but does produce an unusual, anti-social, self-centered individual, who loses all sense of decency and honor.

Morphine is the great pain specific and is a godsend to the sufferer from acute distress. It is the most powerful and most reliable drug to deaden pain and has saved many lives, yet its abuse overshadows all its good qualities.

Heroin in its power to deaden the emotions is three times as strong as morphine, which in turn is eight times as strong as codeine. Heroin is used in cough mixtures to quiet nagging, straining, and irritating coughs and also to allay pain. For these purposes, it is a wonderful and useful drug and its controlled use is eminently justifiable, but its abuse produces appalling results.

A VERY few individuals form the heroin habit by using the drug for the control of asthma, chronic coughs, and bronchitis, but the great majority of heroin addicts commence deliberately to take the "bug" for its effects.

In the early stages of poisoning, it gives a great feeling of exhilaration and self-esteem, with an idea of great strength and importance. It soon destroys all sense of emotional values, as well as all sense of remorse and consideration of others. All sense of honor, integrity, and social responsibility are paralyzed. As a result, its victims become willful, irresponsible, self-centered beasts who care nothing for the rights of others or the sacredness of life or property, and take delight in the most atrocious crimes.

It is the favorite drug of the young of the underworld, who begin to take it deliberately to increase their ego and deaden the pricks of conscience. While under its influence they lose all respect for law and honor. It drives them forth to prey on their fellow men, even the best of their friends. They become veritable fiends while under its influence.

They apparently do not crave the drug. They only wish to sense the feeling of power and to lose the sense of responsibility. The heroin addict frequently becomes so with deliberation and intent. He is frequently an individual with an inferior mental balance, at heart a coward, and takes the drug to overcome this.

THE morphine addict is usually an older person. Many of them begin innocently enough. They may begin taking it to overcome the morning after, an alcoholic debauch, to forget their sorrows, or tragedies and disturbing memories. Very often they have begun taking it to control pain or insomnia.

Taking small doses at first they are always assuring themselves that they can stop its use anytime when the pain and trouble have passed. When they try to stop the drug, the discomfort is so great that they take just one more dose. The first sign of the habit is peevishness and irritability, indifference toward their loved ones, carelessness in dress, and in business matters, and a change in personality.

As the dose increases all these symptoms increase. They become forgetful, morose and indifferent. They are discontented and want to blame others for their condition. They bitterly resent any suggestion that they are forming a habit and invent elaborate fantastic stories to hide the condition. As the habit progresses they lose all sense of responsibility and will do almost anything to obtain the drug.

Guide to Charm

LEGS AND TOES NEED ATTENTION TO GET CHARM

By JACQUELINE HUNT

THE first really warm days bring our legs into the open, eager for their share of fresh air and sunshine. It is twice as much fun working in your garden if you slip on anklets and cool, some work sandals. A little later on, not only legs, but toes, will be exposed at the beach, so you will be wise to give your limbs a few beauty treatments now.

The skin should be kept immaculately clean if you want it to be soft and smooth in texture. When you take your nightly bath, work up a good lather on your bath brush and scrub the feet and limbs thoroughly, especially between the knee and ankle where the skin tends to be rough and scaly.

Rinse and dry thoroughly and massage with softening cream or with a good hand lotion. You will be surprised at the improvement after a single treatment. Massage extra cream into such areas as the knees and ankles.

When you take your sunbath, be sure that the legs get a bit of extra ultra-violet. They are somewhat more slow in tanning than the rest of the skin. The skin in this region is also more sensitive, too, so use suntan oils or plain olive oil freely.

If there is excess hair on your legs and thighs, and it causes you undue embarrassment, use a good depilatory. Or, if you are willing to stand a bit of pain, use one of the wax depilatories that pull the hair from beneath the surface of the skin and discourage its regrowth for a longer period.

When using a depilatory, be sure to follow the directions that come with the preparation so that no irritation follows. One precaution is to avoid warm baths and soap just before using the depilatory. All depilatories should be removed with tepid water, the area dried by patting gently and a good cream or talcum powder applied afterward.

For exercises are excellent for keeping muscles supple and the color of your skin fresh and clear. Try the simple one of rising up on the toes and then lowering the heels to the floor. This can be repeated ten or fifteen times. The next is a rotating movement. Let the foot hang limp while you sit on a chair. Rotate it from the ankle, describing an arc from the ankle. Try walking around your room or on your lawn barefooted, walking first on your tiptoes and then on your heels.

The feet should be given their extra care at night after your warm bath. Work back the cuticles and massage with a rich oil. The toes are flexible and relaxed at this time and you can really improve their shape and discourage blemishing callouses and corns. When you are ready to go to bed, your feet can be as beautifully groomed and the nails manicured as neatly as your fingertips.

America Loses Gatti-Casazza as the Metropolitan Opera Closes for the Summer

WITH the recent ending of the season at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York the colorful adopted sons, for Giulio Gatti-Casazza, the eminent manager of the opera, retired to his villa in Italy and America will probably see him no more. To persons of the music world this seems almost like a night-mare; they somehow still feel that Gatti will be sitting in his little office when the next season starts off. He has been like a tradition at the opera house.

For the last twenty-seven years this austere, dignified gentleman has directed the destinies of America's largest musical organization, and he has seen the opera grow from uncertain beginnings to financial success and lately to depression difficulties. Through it all the artistic side has always been upheld.

Gatti—most everybody speaks of him thusly—is a striking figure. Years ago he was marked by that sleek, black beard, which was, according to the best traditions in the musical world, the Van Dyke sort. Now it is streaked with white, and it therefore gathers still more dignity. The man has always carried himself with a staidness of bearing which has been the chief factor in his remarkable control over sometimes temperamental people.

At an audition, for instance, the hopeful singer would stand on the vast Metropolitan stage, looking out at the dark, empty auditorium, with Gatti seated halfway to the rear. Having finished the task of trying to convince the general manager that he had heard Caruso or Sennrich, all the aspirant ever heard from Gatti was a terse "thank you." The pay-off was either a contract or nothing.

Gatti may retire with the satisfaction of having completed an especially active career. At twenty-four he was made manager of the Teatro Comunale of Ferrara, and five years later he received the same post with La Scala of Milan. Italy's first opera house. He was called by the Metropolitan in 1903. In all, he has supervised more than 5,500 performances of opera and some 200 concerts in this country.

Jacket, Skirt, and Cape Costume Offers Infinite Variety at a Very Small Cost

LARGE BUTTONS, SMALL COLLARS

By IRENE VAIL

New York—A suit—that is, a jacket, skirt and cape—is just what the doctor ordered for the woman who craves variety, but is unable to have many changes of costume. Blouses, as every woman knows, are numerous and varied and it is their variety that makes so much possible. Take, for instance, a mannish shirt, a taffeta suit blouse and a very dainty lingerie blouse; one has right there a variety at comparatively small expense, and smaller anyway than for three entirely different costumes.

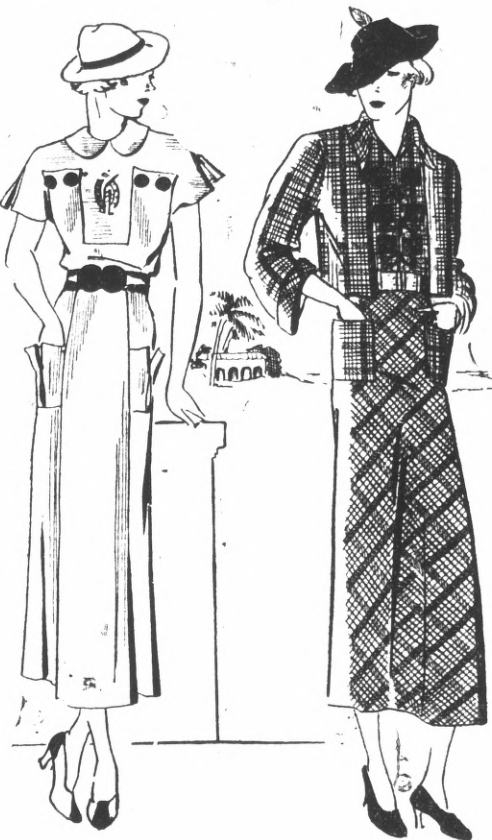

Accessories are increasingly important and run largely to chamois color, white and either plaid or stripes. There are also many printed accessories in geometrical or floral designs.

It is again considered smart to add buttons to one's suit, or to add a flower to the costume. Many capes are reversible, which is another easy way to ring in a change on short notice. In some of the models which have been seen recently the cottons are used, and capes are lined with pique—a smart trick, if you ask me. Tissues, flinghams and gingham itself will be much in vogue when warm weather clothes are needed.

Spots for the spring raincoat are very much in order this season. Take them in two colors on a contrasting third color or in a dark shade on white.

Sketched today: At left, white synthetic jersey is featured for a one-piece frock with large green gull-like buttons and green white leather belt. The Peter Pan collar and monogram are noteworthy for sportswear. At right, a plaid cotton in linen effect is employed for a dress with waistlength loose jacket. The trimming is in cork.

At right of the column a red-tinged effect is promoted in a combination of navy sheer crepe with bright red print.

Beauty Tips

QUESTION: "Please tell me how to apply my rouge. My face is rather round and my complexion pinkish. What color would be best for me? Also what color of powder?" —E. M."

Get a creamy pink or rose beige powder that will harmonize with your skin and at the same time tone down the high color. A clear red or one of the rosy shades of rouge should be satisfactory. Use a paste rouge. To apply it, first dip your forefinger in a little cleansing cream and beginning about a half-inch from your nose make a streak of cream along your cheek bone and one down toward the corners of your mouth. Now blend the two lines carefully, working the color into a narrow triangular area. Be sure to blend carefully so there will be no rough edges or blotches.

QUESTION: "Can you tell me what is meant by 'kitchen cosmetics'? If there is something that I can make at home, I would like to try it as I have very little money to spend for creams and other cosmetics." —Mrs. B. J."

The term "kitchen cosmetics" does refer to simple, homemade complexion aids. Among the commonest are eggs, milk, lemons and cereals for cleansing or facial packs. Eggs are good for facial masks or for your shampoo. Milk is a good cleanser and a mild astringent and lemons are excellent for bleaching and softening your skin and for bringing out the highlights in your hair. Pure olive oil may be used for softening your skin and for cleansing.

Tasty and Nourishing Dishes for Today Spaghetti, Italian Style, Is Good as Entree or Chief Dish

By JUDITH WILSON

ITALIAN spaghetti is one of those versatile dishes that can be served as an entree or as an entire meal, and it combines perfectly with all kinds of meat, fowl or vegetables. The spaghetti itself is quickly and easily cooked by simply dropping it into fresh boiling, salted water and cooking from ten to twelve minutes.

Get either the fine spaghetti made by American manufacturers or the real Italian spaghetti from Italian stores. A pound of spaghetti will make from six to eight large servings.

The making of a good sauce for your spaghetti is not as it is not really difficult, but it requires numerous ingredients and long cooking. The seasonings are to be found in most stores—parsley, garlic, cloves, thyme and sage. You will also want dried or fresh mushrooms and Parmesan cheese. For the final sprinkling once your plate of spaghetti has been dressed with your favorite sauce. When spaghetti makes the main dish for your meal, choose a rich meat sauce. Here is a recipe:

Sauce Genoise
Peel and slice a half pound of mushrooms and simmer in two and one-half cups of hot water for half an hour. Meanwhile chop two tablespoons salt pork, the sauce with one tablespoon fine and saute in one-half cup olive oil until golden brown. Add two pounds round steak that has been coarsely chopped and brown. Add one cup sliced, peeled onions and saute a few minutes, then add six tomatoes which have been peeled and chopped and one cup of liquid drained from the mushrooms.

Chop the drained mushrooms, four sprigs of parsley and two peeled buds of garlic and add to the sauce with one tablespoon sage, one teaspoon powdered thyme, two teaspoons salt, pepper to taste. Cook slowly for two hours or until the mushrooms are as the moisture cooks away.

Cheese Fric with Spaghetti
Cooked spaghetti with a simple tomato sauce, or the spaghetti canned in tomato and cheese sauce may be used. If the ring, grate one-fourth pound each of American cheese and one-fourth pound Swiss cheese. Melt two tablespoons butter in a saucepan and add in three tablespoons flour. Add one cup of milk, one-half teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon paprika and cook, stirring constantly until the mixture thickens. Add the cheese and stir until the cheese melts. Remove from the heat, cool slightly and add four eggs, one at a time, beating vigorously. Pour into a well-greased ring mold and bake in a slow oven until firm. Turn out onto a chop dish and fill the center with hot spaghetti and tomato sauce and serve at once. This makes enough for six.

Quick Sauce for Spaghetti
Saute one-half pound bacon, minced fine in two tablespoons olive oil. Add two cups chopped parsley and one cup chopped celery and cook until golden brown. Add one-half cup chopped carrots, two and one-half cups chopped raw ham and one-half cup meat broth or consommé. Season with pepper, two teaspoons salt, one teaspoon sage, one-half teaspoon thyme, one-half teaspoon chili powder and one small can of tomato paste diluted with one-half cup water. Simmer for half an hour until the vegetables and meat are tender.

THE SEASON FOR AN OLD FAVORITE

STRAWBERRY MOUSSE: 1 cup strawberry jelly or jam, 1 egg white, unbeaten, dash of salt, 4 tablespoons milk, 3/4 cup cream. Beat jelly until soft and smooth. Combine egg white, salt, milk and cream, and beat with rotary egg beater until stiff. Add jelly and mix well. Turn into mold. Cover with waxed paper, press cover tightly down over paper, and pack in equal parts ice and salt. Let stand 4 hours or longer before serving. Makes 1 quart mousse.

You and Your Child

CHILD SHOULD BE TAUGHT TO "HEAR" MUSIC

By JANE HERBERT GOWARD

THE question of music lessons is being argued pro and con in the Stokes home these days. Marian, the eldest of three children, is in her eighth year. There is a piano in the living room standing idle. It has occurred to mother that it would be a good idea to bring the two together. But dad shakes his head. "It is not the expense alone that I'm thinking of," he says. "Take yourself. You learned to play on this very piano as a child. And there it stands, I'll wager that you haven't touched the keys, except to clean them, in six years."

A piano in the home and no music! This is a serious indictment against any mother who can play. It means that she is neglecting the musical education of her children. By the fourth year any child, with very little guidance, can learn to get enjoyment out of music. When mother can make the music herself, so much the better. As the youngsters march, or keeps time or claps his hands in rhythm to the accompaniment, it means an interest shared, the knitting of a closer bond of understanding between mother and child.

In homes without pianos, a victrola will do practically the same thing for child and parent. The idea is to train children to respond to music with their bodies. To develop the rhythmic sense first. Later the child can be taught to dance to music. Or maybe the inspiration to dance will come of itself. Meanwhile, fine musical compositions, a few simple songs, if the child seems to like a certain song, seize the opportunity, suggest that he learn it. If he wants to pick out a tune on the piano show him how. It may mean a developing sense of melody. At any rate, it immediately makes him a performer.

Try Sunday night "sings" with everyone, including dad, grouped around the piano. Help a child become familiar with good music and make a game of identifying fine musical compositions. Take him to concerts. In short, teach him to appreciate music long before you undertake to pay for lessons to teach him to play a musical instrument.

QUESTION: "I have friends living in Europe. Shall I send them a wedding invitation or a wedding announcement?" —A. L."

ANSWER: Send them a wedding invitation just as you would if they were back in your city, or within easy traveling distance and able to be present at the wedding.

QUESTION: "When is it proper for a man to take a lady's arm?" —Allen R."

ANSWER: A man never takes a lady's arm. He offers his own arm instead. His right arm. He does this when the streets are wet or in traffic or in a crowd, in fact whenever assisting a lady is desirable. Otherwise a map and woman walking abroad in the daytime walk side by side.

QUESTION: "I should like to get my brother some stationery as a gift. What kind is correct?" —P. P."

ANSWER: Get white unruled paper with envelopes to match. Most men like correspondence cards with matching envelopes. Why not get an assortment of both kinds of stationery mentioned?

Short Cuts
Soft boiled eggs are cooked in boiling water for three to three and a half minutes. For hard boiled, cook eggs from twelve to twenty minutes.

You will find it easier to fill jars and bottles with preserves and jams by using a gravity boat.

A corned tongue for boiling has to be soaked for several hours in cold water before cooking. Then it should be boiled until the skin turns back. This should take several hours longer.

It's terribly easy for most of us to be over-indulgent to those we love, and it's never good for them. When your cousin is at home his mother probably gets him up early, so don't make things more difficult for her by spoiling him when he is in your care.

MODERN WOMEN

By MARIAN MAYS MARTIN

The Case of a Boarder Who Doesn't Get Along With the Maid—On Spoiling a Child

OUTSIDE interference with any schedule is bound to upset it and render it inefficient. In the case of the star boarder and the maid discussed in this letter, it is clearly up to the outsider to attend strictly to his own affairs and to make any complaint he feels necessary to the mistress of the house, not to the servant.

"My dear Mrs. Martin: I am in considerable of a quandry because of a disagreeable situation in our home. Briefly these are the facts. We, my husband and I, have a very good servant who has been with us some years and has always been very loyal and a good worker. Since the depression we have taken a boarder. He is a friend of my husband's and we think a good deal of him. Now the point is that he is very disagreeable and fault finding with their bodies, is constantly upsetting her and making a very disagreeable situation for us. What am I to do? It's not easy to find another maid as good as she is, and certainly not easy to find any one who can share our home to advantage. Yet I am quite sure the maid will leave if the man doesn't? What can I do.—Depression Victim."

TRY to avoid having the maid leave, and, of course, try to avoid having the man go too. You should have a good straight-from-the-shoulder talk with your boarder, explaining to him that this maid suits you perfectly and that you do not desire to have anything occur that will make her leave you. Tell him to make his complaints to you, that you are responsible for his comfort and that you must ask him not to complain to the maid or to give her orders.

The whole situation seems to have arisen because of this man's tactless interference. None of us enjoys serving two masters. This maid is accountable to you for her actions. You must, of course, insist that she gives this man who is sharing your home the same courteous treatment she gives the rest of your family.

You might impress upon her that were it not for the cooperation of this gentleman it might not be possible for you to employ her. I feel sure that if you are firm with both these offenders you can save the day.

DEAR MRS. MARTIN: I have a small cousin who visits me occasionally, and because I let him sleep as long as he likes in the morning my husband and his mother, who lives with us, complain. They say I am spoiling him and that he should be up for breakfast with the family. He goes to school when he is home and I figure that it's a great deal for him to sleep late. I have had several unpleasant scenes about it, however, and I wonder should I give in.—Childless?

Don't have any scenes about anything so trivial. Get the child up for breakfast. If he is put to bed at the proper time he should have enough sleep and be able to have breakfast with the family without suffering any hardship. Habits are formed early in life, and rising early in the morning is a good habit for a child to form. When anything unusual keeps him up later than his accustomed bedtime let him sleep longer, but I think your family makes a good point, and I certainly would "give in" as you call it.

It's terribly easy for most of us to be over-indulgent to those we love, and it's never good for them. When your cousin is at home his mother probably gets him up early, so don't make things more difficult for her by spoiling him when he is in your care.

NRA Employees Not To Lose Jobs June 16

WASHINGTON, June 3 (UP)—
President Roosevelt tonight asked Donald R. Richberg not to serve notice on NRA employees that there would be no jobs for them after June 16.

The President's request was in response to a question by Richberg.
"The only thing I have to report," Richberg said after he left the White House discussion, "was that Roosevelt might have to fight."

Missing Miner Is Hunted By Ranger Patrol

NORTHFOLK, June 3 (UP)—The winter in the heavy cold of the Rich Stanzas on which Frank Bus-savage, 44-year-old miner, had managed to regain his health, today imperviously was the cause of his death.

Searching parties were organized by Coroner R. S. Day of Modesto county to search for the adventurous miner. Last fall he established a mine in the winter in a cave near Rock Lake in the old Deadwood Pike country, where he was wounded when he was and then a death.

When Alvin James Northfork,
broke through to the snowbound
cabin this spring, it was deserted.

FRENCH LINER SETS RECORD FOR ATLANTIC

NEW YORK, June 3 (UP)—The
new French liner, the Napoleon, which has been named for the emperor Napoleon, today set a new record for the Atlantic by breaking all previous records.

The big liner, which is the first of a new class, left New York for Bordeaux, France, today at 10:30 a. m. in 10 days, 15 hours, 15 minutes and 28 seconds for all of the old record held by the Normandie.

The Napoleon is the first of a new class of liners, which are designed to be the fastest and most comfortable of the world.
The Napoleon is the first of a

Squadrons of airplanes roared over the Normandie before she reached Bordeaux. The ship and the light screens of private yachts, tugs and sightseeing boats picked
her up.

Passengers, exhausted by four days of trying to eat through mountains of civar, remnants of stuff

squads and platoons of crepe-tories, called on last reserves of energy to join in the celebration.
